

COFFEE.dla

Now, will that be coffee, Bush, or Gore? Good morning to ya, I'm Dean Lane, and yer on the Nightside. To many Americans, a morning cup o' Joe starts the day the American Way. Seven-Eleven thinks so too.

So, they're serving "candidate cups": customers choose a cup embossed with the name of their favorite Presidential nominee. Details this morning from spokesperson Nancy Smith, who says the twenty-four-seven chain can reach plenty of voters this way...and that's no java jive.

[TAKE SOT

NAME: smith i'view

OUTCUE: ...to choose a third cup to represent those.

DURATION:2'25"]

WTOP reporter Hank Silverberg with Seven-Eleven spokesperson Nancy Smith, perking up voter interest with a little cream and sugar. Good morning to our listeners around the world and in our nation's capitol...you're on the Nightside with all-news WTOP. I'm Dean Lane.